

I am strongly opposed to allowing members of the CBA or any other company that I have a "business relationship" with to be exempt from Indiana's Telephone Privacy law. These are the exact companies that were problems before, and could become problems again. I don't want unnecessary phone calls that I have not solicited. The only way I want any company to call me would be concerning any problems with my existing account with that company. Do you like getting phone calls in the middle of dinner? Or when you're trying to catch up on some sleep on the weekends? Or in the mornings? Neither do I.
